Operational Manual: How to Harass, Gaslight, and Destroy Your Own Citizens While Pretending to Be a Human Rights Leader

Foreword from the [REDACTED]:

"[REDACTED] is committed to human rights unless its more politically convenient to crush someone quietly and smile about it.

This manual will ensure we keep our global reputation shiny while we do the exact opposite at home."

Chapter 1 Branding Oppression as Care

- Call harassment mental health outreach.
- Send armed cops to check in if the target dies, call it a tragedy and move on.

Chapter 2 Mastering Plausible Deniability

- Harass with coughs, throat clears, and vent whispers.
- Always keep it subtle enough that outsiders think the victim is imagining it.

Chapter 3 The Art of the Empty Apology

- Were listening = do nothing.
- Announce a task force, quietly underfund it, and bury the results.

Chapter 4 Weaponizing the Maple Leaf

- Wrap systemic abuse in Canadian values branding so critics look unpatriotic.
- Take lots of photos with minorities then ignore their complaints.

Chapter 5 Exporting Hypocrisy

- Lecture other countries on rights while over-policing [REDACTED], [REDACTED], [REDACTED], and immigrant communities here.

- Pretend politeness equals justice.

Appendix [REDACTED] (T.I.) Program

- Noise harassment: coughs, mockery, coincidental comments in public.
- Narrative control: label the T.I. as unstable to discredit them.
- Death by cop (rebranded): mental health call gone tragically wrong.

[REDACTED]: where we export human rights and import hypocrisy.
